Sketches of Little LD NEW YORK by M. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—The sociological sharks have hired some human interrogation points to spread their eugenic doctrines and why they should pick Wall street is puzzling the sleek bankers and spick and span brokers. Those who saw the parade declared it was to say the least a disgusting spectacle and not calculated to do anything but harm. Shamble-footed, bear-eyed, scraggy-whiskered, drooping and ill-dressed creatures they were. They said they represented the Foreign Legion of the Army of the Eugenic—whatever that is. The Wall street crowd didn't know whether to laugh or cry. In the end they stared at the big signs the men were carrying.

One read: "I must drink alcohol to sustain life. Shall I transfer the craving to others?"

Another: "Would the prisons and asylums be filled if my kind had no children?"

A third: "I cannot read this sign. By what right have I children?"

Lillian Russell, well-known as a journalist and wife, is to return to the stage. This week she is appearing in a Broadway vaudeville theater. She sings some old song favorites and wears some gowns that make the audience gasp.

It is said that the incandescent Lillian will be seen in musical comedy soon if sufficiently encouraged. She is said to have asked George Bernard Shaw to write the libretto and to be awaiting an answer but at a late hour there were no indications that England would relax its censorship.

Bert Levy, vaudeville cartoonist, has returned from a trip over the Orpheum circuit. While appearing in the city of Memphis recently he entered an elevator which had a negro boy as pilot. The boy recognized the cartoonist immediately.

"Yo Mistah Levy, ain't yo?" asked the negro.

"The same," replied the cartoonist, not at all displeased.

"Ah seen yo' at de Orpheum dis week, aint Ah?"

"Yes," I'm there this week."

The boy was quiet for a moment.

Finally he said: "Dey sho' had a good bill at dat Orpheum las' week."

Lieutenant Percy Richards, friend of nobility in three countries, and known by sight to half the population of New York as "The Man in White" applied the other day for work as a dock laborer—and was refused.

Talented, educated, cultured and refined, a physically perfect man and plant in strength, Lieutenant Richards looks with envy from his tenement window at the grimy chap who spits on his hands, swings his pick and loads stones into a river barge at a dollar a day.

Those who see Richards, sleek, bare-headed and white shod believe him to be a man of prosperity. That is his pose. He has kept it up for eleven months, ever since he and his pretty young wife came to America as war refugees.

He has walked 4,300 miles of New York streets, but has failed to get work for himself.

Dorothy Jardon, who is making "Love, Here is My Heart" popular on Broadway this week, was at a dinner party the other day in a Fifth avenue cafe when a gentleman next to her began sipping his wine with an echo.

He kept it up much to the annoyance of those about him. Finally he turned to Miss Jardon and said, "I just love wine."

"Yes," replied Miss Jardon, "I have heard about it."

A dinner is to be given this week to a dog playing in a Broadway show.

NO TREATING LAW NOT AT ALL IN FAVOR

But It Will Greatly Decrease Drinking among Women in the London District.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The no treating law now enforced in the London district will from present indications greatly decrease drinking among women, for it is among the women of the lower classes that treating is the most prevalent. Ever in the most poverty stricken slums of the East End, a woman who drinks by herself is considered mean, greedy and unsocial and she is accordingly ostracized. At all times of the day, they may be seen around the bars or in the streets in front with beer glasses in hand. Since the law prevents minors entering the barrooms, the women with babies in their arms stand outside for their drinks. But often children tend to the babies while the mothers and grandmothers are inside.

The no treating order went into effect in the West End and in the more respectable parts of London without a protest. It was taken as a joke, and the public houses were crowded with men buying their last treat. But in the East End, actual resentment was felt, chiefly among the women. They regarded it as a blow at their main source of amusement.

Settlement workers count on taking advantage of the new liquor regulations by starting more social halls. A number of these are in operation in the slums now, and their popularity is growing. They were especially designed for soldiers and their girls as a cheap place to spend an evening. The halls are provided with pianos and games, and tea and other soft drinks are sold at cost prices. Heretofore, the saloon, or "pub" has been the only social meeting place for the people of the slums who are glad to escape their own dismal tenements.

PICTURESQUE

Survival of Old England is Removed by Death of Sir Oswald Mosley, Bt.

LONDON, Nov. 3.—The death of Sir Oswald Mosley, Bt., removed a picturesque survival of old England, for he not only looked but actually dressed the cartoonist's part of John Bull, while his mind was correspondingly John Bullish.

Sir Oswald was descended from an ancient Staffordshire family, noted for its stubbornness in litigation but of the highest probity. In his youth he was a notable boxer. He went through Eton, then settled down as a country gentleman. He was a familiar figure at the Christmas cattle show in London, where he was to be seen escorting parties of farmers among the pens, prodding the pigs with his cane and digging hands into the sheep's wool. To heighten his resemblance to John Bull, which he enjoyed he wore a broad brimmed white hat, a coat with a half dozen capes and flowered waistcoat. His unusual costume with his stout, sturdy figure and florid complexion made him the center of the looks of everyone.

RUSHES TO ALTAR

Girl Beats Brother by Five Hours and Wins Bet.

AURORA, Ill., Nov. 3.—Miss Letta Reed, a telephone operator, eloped to Geneva, Ill., with Edgar Bartlett, and was married five hours before her brother took a bride in a formal wedding.

The girl had made a wager with her brother that she would be married before he would, and on his wedding day hurried her fiancé to the altar. She and her husband were guests at her brother's wedding supper.

Lions and tigers are too weak in lung power to run more than a half a mile.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids.

It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "dizziness" and that lousy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.
